SPRING CITY ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT OF DIRECTOR OF QUALITY CONTROL AND LOGISTICS JACK MCDONALD

Spring City, PA, June 1st, 2008- After 35 years in the Lighting Business, Jack

McDonald has decided to retire. He has been employed with Spring City Electrical Manufacturing (Spring City) since 1973 as the Director of Quality Control and Logistics as well as hiring. Kevin Himes will succeed several of the duties that Jack previously covered.

In his role, he quickly became an excellent liaison with the installation contractor and field reps to ensure that Spring City's poles were installed correctly and without major delay. He managed the deliveries of all the products to construction sites as well as hired many individuals over the years. Alan Brink, President of Spring City reflected on Jack's impact on the company, "I want to thank Jack for his wonderful contribution over the past 35 years and his participation in building a stringent set of quality control standards." Spring City employees approximately 115 that have a cumulative experience of 12,000 years.

Jack and his wife Jackie are looking forward to traveling the country and will continue to be a contractor for Spring City by examining various post installations during his travels. We've appreciated his hard work and dedication.
